Buy "Clean and Tested" Seeds

Wherever you buy seeds, require the seller to give you a record of purity and germination. This precaution is especially necessary when buying home grown seeds from farmers. Anyone selling seeds without purity and germination statement is violating the law. In Wisconsin in the spring of 1930 the state collected samples of seeds from planters' boxes exactly as farmers were putting them into the ground. Analysis showed that 27% of these lots contained noxious weeds, and 23% contained sufficient amounts so that they would be condemned by the State Seed Laboratory if offered for sale.

This indicates that a fairly large percentage of the tested seeds did not comply with the seed law. It also demonstrates the necessity for planting only tested seeds free from noxious weeds.
